- The rate in Hammersmith and Fulham was slightly lower than London, but not significantly so, with 106 entrants in 2010/11
- The rate in Kensington and Chelsea was significantly lower than London. There were 77 entrants in 2010/11

Youth justice system

First time entrants to the youth justice system, over time

Comments

- There has been a consistent and steep downward trend in the rate of entrants to youth justice in the last four years across the three boroughs and London and England as a whole
- Numbers have almost halved in this time
- This is likely to reflect national and local policy on around youth justice
